

Dear Community Colleagues,

The University of Minnesota Department of Psychiatry & Behavioral Sciences is seeking experienced psychiatrists to serve as casual part-time teaching attendings in our residency training clinics. These attendings will be assigned to work with a team of residents and other mental health professionals for 4-8 hour time blocks each week.

This new initiative is part of a revamp of our teaching clinic structure to create more specialized inter-professional clinical treatment teams. We are looking for experienced community colleagues who are enthusiastic about learning and teaching, who would enjoy helping 3rd-year residents hone their skills, and who are excited to be part of new outpatient programs focused on mood disorders, anxiety and trauma, and psychosis.

Teaching attendings are present during clinic hours with the residents, hear about cases, participate in patient interviews with the residents, and help the residents to formulate and implement treatment plans.

If you are interested, please contact Dr. Sophia Vinogradov, Department Head, at svinogra@umn.edu.
